

Vimal Vachhani is the founder and CEO of CREx Software, a technology and consulting firm focused on solving data and reporting challenges in commercial real estate. With deep experience across real estate ownership, investment management, and property operations, Vimal helps firms modernize how they collect, manage, and deliver insights from their data.

His work blends real estate domain expertise with cutting-edge technology, including AI-driven reporting, automation, and integrations with major property management systems. Vimal has partnered with owners, investors, and asset managers to streamline reporting workflows, improve data access, and enable smarter decision-making across portfolios.