Dear Assistant Secretary Kautter and Chief Counsel Desmond:

On behalf of the 1.4 million members of the National Association of REALTORS®, and its affiliates, the CCIM Institute, the Institute of Real Estate Management, and the REALTORS® Land Institute, I am writing to urge the Treasury Department and Internal Revenue Service to include deadline relief for 1031 like-kind exchanges with any forthcoming package of taxpayer relief measures.

As Americans struggle under the unprecedented conditions created by the coronavirus crisis, our members are experiencing delays in property settlements due to title companies and others who are closed due to the current emergency. This, of course, can make it impossible for some who are involved in real property exchanges under section 1031 to meet the 180-day deadline. Similar problems are likely making it difficult or impossible to meet the 45-day period for identifying possible properties as exchange candidates. Without relief, missing these deadlines could invalidate the deferral treatment promised by section 1031 due to no fault of the taxpayer.

It is our understanding that regulatory relief as to the deadlines of section 1031 like-kind exchanges is routinely granted in cases of presidentially declared disasters. We would submit that the current crisis calls for similar relief. We thank you in advance for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Vince Malta
